Did you know . . . !

The world's oldest known breed of domesticated dog is the Saluki, believed to have emerged in 329 BC. Saluki dogs were revered in ancient Egypt, being kept as royal pets and being mummified after death. There are carvings found in Sumer (present-day southern Iraq) which represent a dog, closely resembling a Saluki, which date back to 7000 BC.

Did you know . . . !

The most famous dog drawn by Charles M. Schulz is Snoopy, the beloved beagle from the comic strip Peanuts. Snoopy is arguably the most famous cartoon canine in history. Snoopy first appeared in the third Peanuts strip on October 4, 1950. His appearance was inspired by Spike, one of Schulz's childhood dogs. Snoopy is often shown sleeping on his to of his doghouse.

Barks & Meow's Express!

Santa Barbara - Sept 2025

HEROIC DOG

In 1954, Tang, a big, friendly collie in Denison, Texas, leaped in front of oncoming vehicles on more than one occasion to rescue children. He often used his strength to push young children to the curb before they could be struck by an oncoming vehicle. Once, Tang firmly planted himself in front of a parked milk truck and refused to move. He barked furiously until he convinced the driver to get out of the truck and look in the back. The surprised driver found the truck's back door was wide open and a 2-year-old girl had wandered inside. Had it not been for Tang, everyone believed the youngster would have fallen out when the truck pulled away.

Fun Trivia

*Chinchillas are from South America. They are specifically from Peru, Bolivia, Chile and Argentina, and records show they have been around for at least 1,000 years or more.

*Many famous rabbits come from literature, animation, and popular culture. Some of the most recognizable include Bugs Bunny, Peter Rabbit, the White Rabbit from Alice in Wonderland, Roger Rabbit, and the Easter Bunny. Other notable fictional rabbits include Thumper from Bambi, and Rabbit from Winnie-the-Pooh. The Energizer Bunny, a commercial mascot, is also a famous rabbit.

*Chihuahuas are very popular in Mexico, where they are considered a national symbol. Their popularity stems from several factors: Their cultural significance is deeply rooted in Mexican culture and history, and are believed to have descended from ancient dogs kept by the Toltec civilization.

A FEW SILLY JOKES

- #1: Walking past a veterinary clinic, a woman noticed a small boy and his dog waiting outside. 'Are you here to see Dr Meyer?' she asked. 'Yes,' the boy said. 'I'm having my dog put in neutral.'
- #2: I watched my dog chase his tail for 10 minutes and thought "Wow, dogs are so easily entertained". Then I realized I just watched my dog chase his tail for 10 minutes.
- #3: This morning I saw my neighbor talking to her cat. It was obvious the poor woman thought the cat understood her. When I got home I told my dog... we laughed a lot!
- #4: The dog is barking at the back door and the man is yelling at the front door. Who do you let in first? The dog, because he'll shut up when he comes in.

PAW-SCOPES

DOGS:

Your K9 is loyal and attentive and expects the same trustworthiness from you. He loves routine and all things in order. So, stay in time for feeding and walking him when it's not too hot. Give him a task, and he will work from dawn to dusk, enjoying being helpful and valuable. He'll give you more wags and wiggles than you can handle!

CATS:

Generally speaking, your cat is a charmer...a true social success capable of winning over even the most fervent cat-hater. Cuddles abound and meows are endless, along with those beautiful deep colored eyes that stare at you with such adoration! Who can resist!

Guinness World Records

*The oldest living giant panda in the world is currently Xin Xin, who resides at Chapultepec Park Zoo in Mexico City. She recently celebrated her 35th birthday, making her the oldest panda living outside of China. While Xin Xin holds the title for the oldest living panda outside of China, the title of the oldest giant panda ever in captivity belongs to Jia Jia, who lived to be 38 years old and resided at Hong Kong Ocean Park, reports People.com. Jia Jia's companion, An-An, who also lived at Ocean Park, was the oldest male giant panda in captivity, passing away at 35 years old.

*The first diabetes-detection dog was Armstrong, a yellow labrador retriever trained in 2003 in California to detect via scent the subtle chemical changes leading to hypoglycaemia (low blood sugar), a condition that if left unchecked can cause a diabetic to slip into a potentially fatal coma. So successful was Armstrong that Dogs for Diabetics (D4D), a charity training diabetes detection dogs, was founded in 2004.

Just in case you didn't know,

A bonobo is a type of great ape, scientifically known as Pan paniscus, closely related to chimpanzees and humans. They are known for their peaceful social interactions and are found only in the Democratic Republic of Congo, south of the Congo River. Bonobos are characterized by their slender build, dark faces, and a tendency for females to form strong social bonds.

Cat Quiz

Q: When the Cheshire Cat of Alice in Wonderland disappears, what is the only thing he leaves behind?

A: His Smile!

Q: The musical CATS is based on a book of poems by which British author?

A: The lyrics of CATS are from T. S. Eliot's 1939 Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats.

Q: What is the real name of DC Comics' Catwoman?

A: Selina Kyle is sometimes called the Princess of Plunder or the Feline Felon.

Q: What is the rarest cat color?

A: The rarest cat color is albinism. This is a genetic condition where a cat lacks all pigment, resulting in a white coat, pink skin, and pink or blue eyes, and is caused by a recessive gene. Unlike white cats that have a masking gene, true albinos have a complete absence of pigment.

Bird Trivia

*Spectacled Owls can live up to 35 years in the wild and 25-30 years in captivity. While they have few predators in the wild, factors like habitat loss and potential injuries while hunting can affect their lifespan.

*Some species of parrots have been known to live more than 100 years. Cockatoos aren't far behind, sometimes living as long as 75 years.

*The largest known bird's nest was built by a pair of bald eagles near St Petersburg, Florida, USA and measured 2.9 m (9 ft 6 in) wide and 6 m (20 ft) deep. It was examined in 1963 and was estimated to weigh more than 2 tons (4,409 lb).

*The color of a swan's beak varies depending on the species. Mute Swans have orange beaks, while Black Swans have red beaks. Whooper and Trumpeter Swans typically have black beaks.

*The dove is any of certain birds of the pigeon family, Columbidae. The names pigeon and dove are often used interchangeably. Although dove usually refers to the smaller, long-tailed members of the pigeon family, there are exceptions: the domestic pigeon, a rather typical pigeon, is frequently called the rock dove and is the bird portrayed as and called the "dove of peace."

Michael Jackson's chimpanzee, Bubbles, is still alive and well, living at the Center for Great Apes in Florida. He's now 42 years old and lives in a sanctuary with other chimpanzees, enjoying activities like painting and spending time with friends. Bubbles became famous in the 1980s as Michael Jackson's companion, appearing in music videos, on tour, and in photoshoots.

Police Horses Have Been Around Since the 17th Century

Police horses have been used as a peaceful method of maintaining law and order since the 17th century. They are still used by many police forces but are not as widespread as in the past due to the increased use of police cars and motorbikes. However, a mounted officer is still a common sight in many parts of the world and is useful, particularly in crowded areas: generally mounted police officers can see for a long distance and can easily be seen by others. They also help to maintain order as they command respect and a sense of authority. The horses that are used for this job tend to be castrated as this makes them more peaceful.

Brief History of the Western Riding Saddle

Early day horsemen rode bareback. From traveling to waging war, for hundreds of years, man rode without a saddle.

The first saddle is believed to have been invented in 365 AD by the Sarmatians. Proud horsemen who used their horses in battle and also sacrificed them to the gods, their saddle creations were brought back to Europe by the Huns. Finding the metal stirrups great for mounting, as well as for increasing overall balance, the Europeans discovered that they were able to wield war weapons with more skill and accuracy.

In the beginning, leather tanning was undeveloped, at best. As the years passed, saddlers perfected the process, resulting in soft, supple, durable hides. The saddle's tree, generally made from a carved piece of wood, evolved into wood covered rawhide, fiberglass, carbon fiber, and, most recently, a complete removal of the tree.

The western saddle we know today is an evolved version of the Spanish Vaquero's working saddle. As the working cowboys used their saddles, they underwent a gradual change in order to continue to meet the demands of life in the Old West. Specialized jobs, such as roping cattle, resulted in specialized saddle types.

Then came the invention of rodeos. Initially intended for working cowboys to showcase their skills, the introduction of individualized events led to the evolution of more saddle types, from barrel to roping models.

As riders' demands changed from working to pleasure, and chosen mounts continue to evolve, the saddle has advanced, as well. One only has to look as far as a retail catalog or website to see the dizzying array of models available today.

THEN

WELL PLAYED HORSE, WELL PLAYED!

FUN FACTS

Several animals are commonly associated with autumn, which includes squirrels, deer, and migrating birds. Squirrels are often seen gathering nuts, deer engage in mating rituals, and birds fly south for the winter. Other animals like foxes, hedgehogs, and geese are also linked to this season, preparing for winter through various activities such as growing thicker fur, hibernating, or migrating.

Visiting an orchard or pumpkin patch is a quintessential autumn activity. These places are not just about picking pumpkins or apples; they offer a whole day of fun with activities like hayrides, corn mazes, and petting zoos.

What animals hibernate in the fall?

Turtles, snakes, wood frogs, and ground-hogs are other animals that engage in hibernation, torpor, or estivation. Turtles burrow into mud at the bottom of ponds, lowering their metabolic rate to a near standstill.

The spirit animal for September is often considered the Raven. Some sources also associate the Fox or Hawk with September birthdays. The Raven, in particular, is linked to wisdom, intellect, and a connection to both the spiritual and physical realms.

Sigmund Freud's Dogs

Sigmund Freud's dog, a Chow Chow named Jofi (also known as Yofi), played a significant role in his life and work. She was present during his therapy sessions and is considered an early example of animal-assisted therapy. Jofi's presence was believed to have a calming effect on his patients and Freud even used her to gauge their emotional state.

Freud observed that Jofi could sense a patient's emotional state and would position herself accordingly, sitting closer to those who seemed depressed and further from those who appeared anxious. Freud reportedly relied on Jofi's reactions to patients as a way to assess their mental state, viewing her as a reliable judge of character. Jofi was also known to be a surprisingly accurate timekeeper, yawning and leaving the room at the end of the 50-minute session.

Freud had other Chow Chows, including Lun-Yu and Lün, and his daughter Anna Freud also owned a Chow named Jofi II.
